Society of Clinical Psychology

Division 12 of the American Psychological Association

About Division 12 ...

With over 5,000 members in various categories, the Society of Clinical Psychology is one of APA's largest divisions. The Society represents the science and profession of clinical psychology to the American Psychological Association and to the public.

As an Early Career Psychologist (ECP) in the first four years after post-doc, you are invited to become affiliated with the Society through the Early Career Affiliate Program. As an ECP affiliate, you will learn more about the activities and issues that are of interest to clinical psychologists, including reviewing for journals, mentoring, etc.

The annual ECP affiliate fee of $40 includes online subscriptions to the Division 12 journal, Clinical Psychology: Science and Practice and The Clinical Psychologist.

You may attend the Society's meetings and participate in APA Convention events geared to Early Career Psychologists.

You may also join the Division 12 listserv, exclusively for Society members.

See the website for more student member benefits: <http://www.div12.org>

AFFILIATION with the Society of Clinical Psychology

Affiliation is based on the calendar year, but applications can be submitted any time.

If your application is for the current year, your affiliation will be dated January 1st of this year. For applications received after September 1, membership will begin January 1 of next year.

If your application is for the next calendar year, membership will begin next January 1. Your subscriptions will also begin with the first issue after January 1.

Please note that APA ECP affiliation is separate from the Society's. Society ECP affiliates are not required to be members of the American Psychological Association. APA affiliation is recommended, and information can be obtained from the APA Office in Washington, DC. (800) 374-2721.

You may become an Early Career Affiliate at $40/year for up to four years after your Post-doc year.
